When Heritage Fuels Excellence

Balogun Ayoola Olubukunmi Fehintola-Brat represents the extraordinary heights Ìjẹ̀bù daughters can reach when heritage meets purpose. From OLASS to the Middle East, from hospital wards to entrepreneurial ventures, from Norfolk Navy base to Oke-Aje market – her journey proves that excellence knows no boundaries.

Daughter of the Arogundade and Afebioye families of Oke Agbo, married into the royal lineage of Idena, she carries multiple legacies forward while creating her own. Her late father's example of community leadership lives on through her public toilet donation and cultural stewardship as Balogun Egbe Obaneyeye Obinrin Akile Ijebu.

Running dual careers (nursing and military), building a global business (Bradolf Scrubs and Fitness), pursuing dual advanced degrees, raising two children, and serving her community – she embodies what she calls "dignity of labor balanced with meaningful living."

Full Blooded Ìjẹ̀bù.

ABOUT

Balogun (Mrs.) Ayoola Olubukunmi Fehintola-Brat is a living bridge - between continents, cultures, compassion, and leadership. Born into the family of Late Pa Adewale Abiodun Fehintola of the Arogundade Family, Oke Agbo, and Chief Mrs. Folakemi Garnny Fehintola of the Afebioye Family, Oke Agbo.

A proud daughter of Ìjẹ̀bú soil, she attended Our Lady of Apostle Secondary School (OLASS), Ìjẹ̀bú-Ode, before earning her Bachelor's degree in Economics from Olabisi Onabanjo University. She is married to Prince Ayoola Olayinka Oyekusi-Brat, grandson of the first Ebi of Idena, Ebi Odutayo, Ebi 1. Together, they are blessed with two children.

Currently a dedicated Registered Nurse in the United States specializing in addiction, cardiovascular, and medical-surgical care, she holds an Associate Degree in Nursing from Community College of Rhode Island, BSN from Chamberlain University, and is pursuing her Master's in Family Nurse Practitioner and Doctor of Nursing Practice concurrently at Regis University.

As Second Class Petty Officer in the US Navy Reserves and successful entrepreneur, she embodies excellence across every sphere while serving as Balogun Egbe Obaneyeye Obinrin Akile Ijebu.

THE JOURNEY

Ayoola's journey began at the prestigious Our Lady of Apostle Secondary School (OLASS), Ìjẹbú-Ode, before earning her Economics degree from Olabisi Onabanjo University. Her path to healthcare excellence took her through Community College of Rhode Island (Associate Degree in Nursing), Chamberlain University (BSN), and now Regis University where she pursues dual advanced degrees - Master's in Family Nurse Practitioner and Doctor of Nursing Practice concurrently.

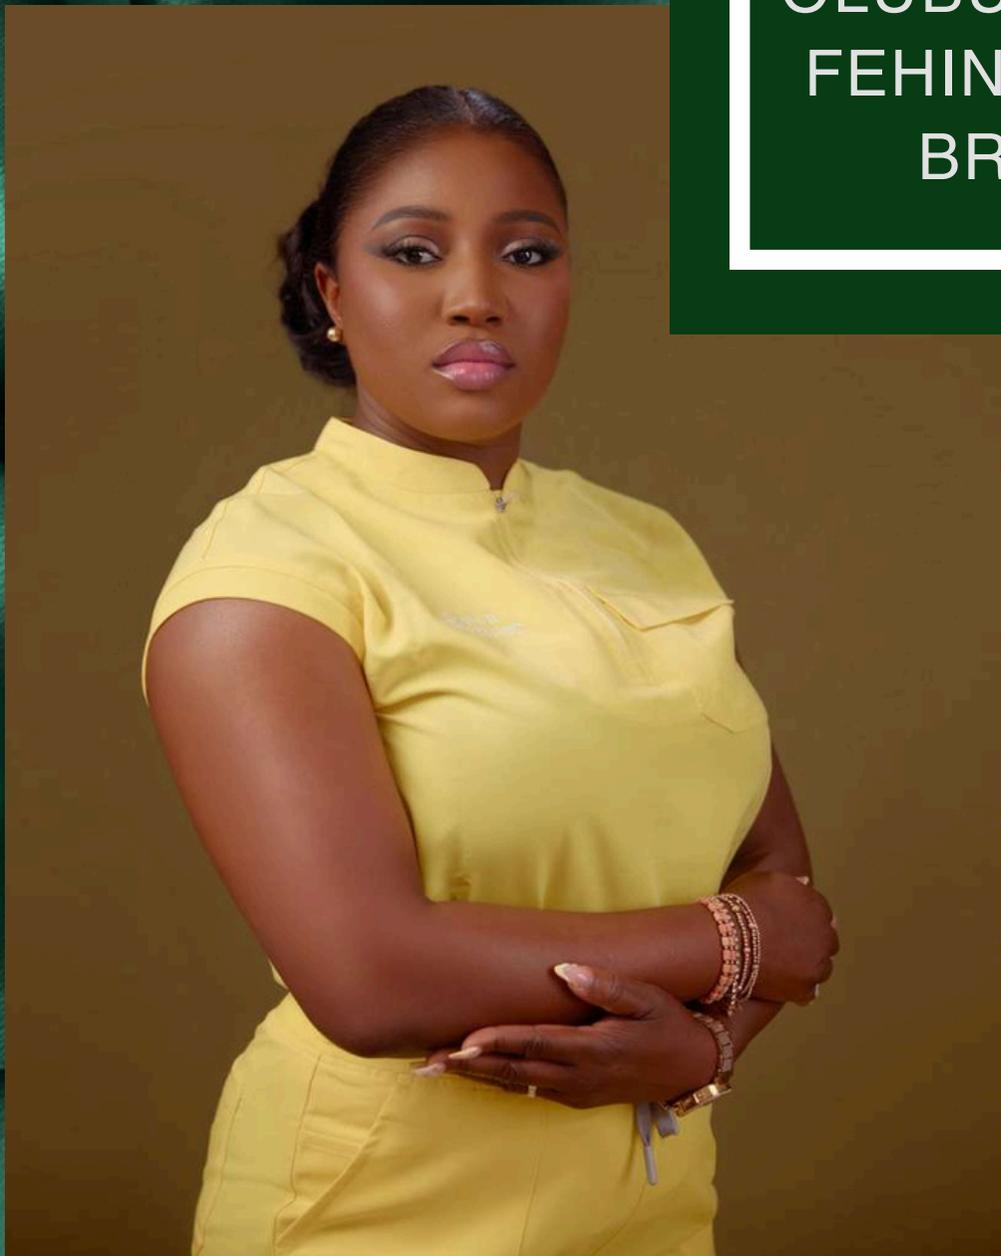

Her military career in the United States Navy Reserves has been marked by exceptional distinction: meritoriously advanced multiple times, earning Hero of the March, Blue Jacket of the Year for Norfolk region, multiple Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medals, and most recently, the Global War on Terrorism Expeditionary Medal following her deployment to the Middle East.

Beyond her dual careers in healthcare and military service, she has maintained an entrepreneurial spirit throughout her journey. In Nigeria, she built Bradolf Event Coordination/Ushering (2008), which became a household name for high-level events. After relocating to the US, she transitioned her entrepreneurial focus, launching Bradolf Scrubs and Fitness (2023) - manufacturing and distributing world-class nursing scrubs and activewear for healthcare professionals globally.

Her community-first leadership was instilled by her late father, renowned for his congeniality and service.

VISION AND LEGACY

Balogun Fehintola-Brat envisions a future where diaspora excellence directly transforms homeland communities, where professional achievement fuels cultural preservation, and where women lead across multiple spheres without compromise.

Professionally, she aims to advance healthcare delivery through her dual pursuit of Family Nurse Practitioner and Doctor of Nursing Practice credentials while expanding Bradolf Scrubs and Fitness as a global brand representing quality and excellence.

As Balogun Egbe Obaneyeye Obinrin Akile Ijebu, she unites ìjẹ̀bù daughters across borders, ensuring cultural pride translates into practical service - exemplified by her public toilet facility donation to Oke -Aje market women in her father's memory.

Her legacy honors her late father's example of community leadership and congeniality while creating new pathways for the next generation - proving that a high-value woman can balance dignity of labor with meaningful living, professional excellence with entrepreneurial success, and international achievement with homeland commitment.

BUSINESS & CULTURAL IMPACT

Healthcare Excellence: As a specialized Registered Nurse in addiction, cardiovascular, and medical-surgical care, she serves America's most vulnerable patients. Her educational journey - from Community College of Rhode Island (ADN) to Chamberlain University (BSN) to concurrent Master's and Doctoral programs at Regis University - demonstrates relentless pursuit of excellence.

Entrepreneurial Journey:

In Nigeria, she founded Bradolf Event Coordination/Ushering (2008), which became a household name planning and coordinating high-level events across Ogun State and beyond - demonstrating her business acumen and leadership from an early stage.

Today, she channels that entrepreneurial spirit into Bradolf Scrubs and Fitness (2023), manufacturing, distributing, and selling world-class nursing scrubs and activewear - bringing quality products to healthcare professionals globally while building a brand that represents excellence and innovation.

Cultural Leadership: Her donation of a public toilet facility for market women at Oke-Aje, Ìjẹ̀bù-Ode, dedicated to her late father's memory, exemplifies community-first leadership.

Honored as The Ìjẹ̀bù's Symbol of Excellence in the Diaspora and 10th Ambassador for Ìjẹ̀bù Man of the Year (2022) by Celebrology International.

"I am a living bridge - between continents, between cultures, between compassion and leadership. My father taught me that true excellence means serving others. That lesson guides everything I do."

THE CALL

"To every Ìjẹ̀bú daughter and son: excellence abroad is meaningless if it doesn't translate into impact at home.

I stand as a living bridge - not because I chose to, but because heritage demands it. My late father's memory lives on through the public toilet facility I donated to market women at Oke-Aje. Your legacy awaits too.

Serve with excellence wherever you are. But remember: our people need more than our success stories - they need our service, our resources, and our commitment to transformation.

Be the bridge. Build the legacy. Honor the heritage."
